Citigroup Prize Winner Announced

Joel Sternfeld, one of the pioneers of contemporary color photography in the 1970s, has won the 8th Citigroup Photography Prize. The award, which is administered by the Photographer's Gallery in London, includes £20,000 in cash. Sternfeld was one of four finalists—Robert Adams, Peter Fraser, and David Goldblatt were the other three—who were singled out from more than 80 nominations for having "not yet received the public recognition that their influence or work warrants." The exhibition of the four finalists' works was recently on view in London and will travel this summer to Düsseldorf, where it will be on view at the Museum Kunst Palast. □
