7. See Oscar Tuazon

A sculptural force to be reckoned with.

For his first show at this gallery, Oscar Tuazon provides bookshelves lined with books, forms hanging overhead with records of L.A.'s alarming lack of rainfall this year, and planters and doors. All look like they are designed for a breakaway republic, far away from the pollution, insistent on radical politics, resistance, and taking a stand — come what may. Tuazon raises being a survivalist to an art. —Jerry Saltz
